THE HISTORY OF WOLVERHAMPTON

Racing began in Wolverhampton in 1825 and moved to the current racecourse site in 1888, with the first race meeting being held on the 13th of August.

In 1993 the site was redeveloped removing the original National Hunt Track and building the All Weather Track, in doing so becoming Britain's first floodlit track. Also built at the same time was the new Grandstand, Executive Boxes and Restaurants, new Stables, Workshops, Houses and a Hotel. We are proud that in 1994, Her Late Majesty Queen Elizabeth II re-opened the new Wolverhampton Racecourse.

National Hunt and Point to Point continued on a new track until 2004 when we installed a Polytrack surface and realigned the All Weather Track.

In 2014, another major investment was made into a new surface, this time a high-performance Tapeta surface, that wasn't yet used in Great Britain. After a three-month resurfacing period, the racecourse opened for business again with our first meeting on the Tapeta track, receiving excellent reviews from jockeys, trainers, owners and racegoers.

Wolverhampton Racecourse now welcomes 120,000 visitors each year across 80 race fixtures, themed raceday events, and conferences.

I recently had the pleasure of attending an event at Wolverhampton Racecourse, and I was thoroughly impressed by the experience. The hospitality was excellent, with the staff being both friendly and attentive throughout the day. The facilities are comfortable, with plenty of seating options and great views of the track.
